Response to student feedback in 2022/23 course survey

We thank the students who responded to the survey. We were very happy to see overwhelmingly positive feedback, praising course content, notes, tutorials and organisation. As always, there were different preferences for changes in terms of mathematical rigor, sketches and difficulty, sometimes contradictory. Unfortunately, it is impossible to satisfy all of these preferences at the same time.

There was one comment criticising missing answers to in-note questions. We do provide answers to all in-note questions. Student answers to in-note questions are not assessed and students automatically get an answer when submitting anything, which could even be just a single character. We tried to make this clear but will try even harder next year.
